Basically just a ton of my headcanons and deeper backstories for how I view Smurfs. The first chapter is species-wide notes, so two twin Smurfs' character profiles have been combined to keep the number of chapters 100.

Blossom (the Smurf village we all know and love) has a population of around 300, but I typically stick to referencing the following 100 Smurfs.

This work will be continuously updated over time, and will eventually include fanart.

Chapter 1: Species Notes

AI art of a typical male Smurf at the bottom. Female art to-be-made.

Female Smurfs exist but are far less common than males. It's estimated to be around a 5:1 ratio. This has led to a popular myth that female Smurfs don't actually exist, giving birth to many theories on how they reproduce.

Smurfs actually reproduce via eggs, which take 10 or so years to hatch. Hatchlings are called hatchlings or Baby Smurfs. Smurf children/adolescents are called Smurflings. Smurfs reach maturity around 200 years after they hatch, though 300 is still considered pretty young.

By the time a Smurf reaches 1,000 years old, they are considered to be something of 'retirement' age. They support the village by taking care of Smurflings and teaching what they have learned, but no longer are expected to do much physically.

Smurflings go by various nicknames until they, or sometimes the larger group, gives them a true name based on some predominant trait of theirs. Most Smurflings don't think much about their names until about a third of the way through childhood, with many not really caring long into their 'teens', but some obsess over it.

Females have short, curly head hair. Males don't have head hair but typically start developing beards and mustaches as they get older, though many shave until they're truly old. Their hair gets longer and straighter over time.

Most Smurfs wear white, but not all. Smurfs feel weird showing their bare heads in public, meaning just about all of them wear hats, and might grow uncomfortable around people that don't (even from other species!). Red hats are worn traditionally only by their leaders, which are called Redcaps — most villages are led either by one Redcap or by a mated pair.

Smurf diets consist mostly of berries, especially one specific type dubbed 'Smurfberries'. Leaves, nuts, grasses, and roots are common as well. Smurfs are mildly photosynthetic, which is why so many go without shirts, to absorb sunlight. Mushrooms are occasionally eaten, but are more commonly grown for other uses, such as housing.

Smurfs have purple blood.

Eye colors:

- Blue (most common)
- Purple
- Green
- Turquoise/teal (uncommon)
- Orange (rare)

Hair colors:

- Blue
- Green
- Purple
- Orange (uncommon)
- Black (rare)
- White (starts turning white in old age)

Pets:

- Insects of various sorts, especially caterpillars — the most common housepets
- Spiders, scorpions, and other not-insects — less common
- Birds of various sorts — used for transport and battle
- Rabbits — used primarily for their 'wool', though ways to ride them have recently been discovered
- Squirrels — pretty much only Tracker and Feral

- Cats — pretty much only Barista, to everysmurf else's horror
- Dogs — there is a dog living in Blossom, and it's a very weird thing. His name is Puppy.

- Bats — pretty much only Spelunker
- Rocks — surprisingly common, if only to humor Clumsy

Basic more-or-less age equivalency:

- Smurf — Human
- 10 — 1
- 100 — 10
- 180 — 18
- 200 — 20

Chapter 2: Alchemist 'Al' Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Alchemy/potions.

Job(s): Redcap of Blossom Village. Hobby sorcerer.

Appearance: Average height and build. Blue eyes. Full beard, white. Red hat, red footsie pants, fingerless red gloves, walking staff with potion bottles tied to it.

Relatives: Warrior Smurf (mate), Brainy Smurf (son), Smurfette (adopted daughter)

Shipped With: Warrior.

Age Bracket: Older adult.

My version of Papa Smurf.

He's wise, fair, and loving, but doesn't always notice when something bad or unfair is happening and is capable of making mistakes. He's strict and has a temper, but overall is a reasonable and caring authority figure that is well-respected for a reason.

Chapter 3: Warrior 'Rory' Smurf ♀

Gender: Female

Special Trait: Battle philosophy.

Job(s): Redcap of Blossom Village. Fighting instructor.

Appearance: Average height and build. Turquoise/teal eyes. Long white hair, typically kept in a bun. Red hat, red shoes, red cardigan over a yellow dress, old spear used as a walking staff.

Relatives: Alchemist Smurf (mate), Brainy Smurf (son), Smurfette (adopted daughter)

Shipped With: Alchemist.

Age Bracket: Older adult.

My version of Smurfwillow. She's got real Splinter from TMNT vibes.

Once a fierce warrior, she now spends her days teaching others how to fight — and when not to fight. She is big on loyalty, mindfulness, meditation, and all those other things that separate a village warrior from a random brute. She is kind, intelligent, and always encourages others to be their best selves. She can be strict, but she's always the first to offer somesmurf a chance to prove themselves, even when everysmurf (themselves included) don't think that they can.

She runs a mushroom building called the Dojo, where the village's protectors gather to train, spar, and learn.

Chapter 4: Brainiac 'Brainy' Smurf ♂

Now with fanart! An image drawn by me at the top, and (eventually) AI art at the bottom.

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Learning/curiosity.

Job(s): Town Librarian, Assistant Potioneer

Appearance: Average height and build. Purple eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, round black glasses, oversized brown backpack.

Relatives: Alchemist Smurf (father), Warrior Smurf (mother), Smurfette (adopted sister)

Shipped With: Clumsy.

Age Bracket: Young adult.

As a Smurfling, he went by the nickname Glasses. He tried to choose the name Knowledgeable Smurf, but it didn't stick.

He tends to use big words when speaking, and has the nastiest habit of using run-on sentences. He loves to ramble.

He is the proud owner of a 'Smurfway', which he rides regularly. Sometimes he reads while riding it, but he's pretty good at not bumping into things.

He may not be Clumsy levels of ungraceful, but he still trips over his own feet more than most Smurfs.

He once spilt a potion on a ladybug. He nursed it back to health out of guilt, but it was forever changed. He adopted it as a beloved pet, naming it Snapshot/Snappybug.

He deeply respects and looks up to his parents, especially his Papa. He tries very hard to become a master potionmaker and grand leader just like his dear father.

A big milestone for Brainy will be when he realizes that he hates potions and doesn't even want to lead anything, politics are boring and stressful. He just wants to read and run experiments and maybe write a few thousand books that only Clumsy will actually read.

Temporarily filled in as village librarian despite his protests. Long story short, he lives in his public library now.

His pseudo big brother figure is Hefty. His best friend (and eventually more) is Clumsy. Despite initial dislike, he does come to see Smurfette as his sister and loves her deeply. Over time he manages other friendships, though usually quite against his will — these include Historian, Barista, and Jokey (this would be where the against his will most strongly comes into play).

Arrogant, smug, and incapable of admitting when he's wrong. He will learn how to be comfortable with his own talents and admitting when he doesn't know something... someday.

It's important to note that Brainy's intelligence isn't what isolates him.

The village reveres Alchemist for his intelligence. They like Handy despite his own mad scientist side. There are many intelligent Smurfs that are beloved.

Brainy is ostracized because he's mean, incapable of admitting when he's wrong, overly controlling, and always trying to tell others how to do their jobs even when he doesn't actually know how to do their jobs. He demands respect, obedience, and trust without earning it. He can't apologize and often deflects blame.

And he'll never 100% grow out of all that, but he WILL grow. And someday the village will think of bossy, annoying Brainy Smurf as a distant memory, replaced by their eccentric town librarian and resident mad scientist.

Brainy is legitimately a genius — but his need to ALWAYS be right and his constant guesswork when he doesn't know something rather than admitting he lacks specific information makes him come off as far less intelligent than he actually is, something that takes him a while to realize.

Brainy's attempts to justify and prove his intelligence actually make others doubt him, because they see him constantly telling them how to do their jobs 'better' in incorrect ways, see him deflecting and stumbling and insisting that he's right even when he's provably in the wrong, and they quite understandably write him off as all talk and no substance.

Ironically, Brainy will only gain the respect he so craves after he starts admitting when he can't do something. Only when he can say 'I don't know' and 'I need help' and 'I was wrong' and 'you're better at this than I am' without flinching will other Smurfs start realizing how intelligent he actually is.

Some already know. Clumsy knows. Hefty knows. Smurfette knows. Even Jokey knows. But the only way for every smurf to know is if Brainy stops caring whether they know or not.

Chapter 5: Smurfette♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Emotional intelligence.

Job(s): Gardener, apprentice therapist.

Appearance: Average height and build. Yellow eyes. Long, straight blonde hair. White hat, white dress with a subtle flower pattern, white shoes. Eventually replaced by pink hat and dress, red shoes and cardigan.

Relatives: Alchemist Smurf (adopted father), Warrior Smurf (adopted mother), Brainy Smurf (adopted brother), Gargamel (Creator and 'father')

Shipped With: Hefty.

Age Bracket: Young adult.

Created by Gargamel after he heard the urban legend that female Smurfs don't exist, she was born with various health problems. She was discovered and rescued when she was still a Smurfling, before she grew fully into the seductress she was meant to be. She was adopted and brought to full health by Alchemist.

Smurfette is very different than most Smurfs. She has long, straight golden hair and bright yellow eyes. She doesn't understand Smurf-speak very well and has trouble recognizing the subtle differences in Smurf faces. In many ways, her mind works more like a human's than a Smurf's.

She starts off as Smurfette because she's not exactly a full Smurf.

She later claims the name Empathy (Emi) after realizing that her thing is emotions, even apprenticing under Mental and working as a therapist/counselor.

This grows into a talent for soothing conflicts, connecting with people, and getting others to listen to her — it is at this point that she fully grows into Ambassador (Amy) Smurf.

Someday, she will take over as the village Redcap (though she'll wear pink), alongside Hefty.

I disliked how that one Smurf show made her Thing 'smurf-fu'.

That felt like a betrayal to Smurfette's character. It felt weak. It felt like they didn't know how to make her more than 'the girl Smurf' without randomly making her tougher than Hefty.

Smurfette is NOT a fighter. An adventurer, sure, and she can have her tough moments — but not a fighter.

She is sensitive. Her dynamic with Hefty is partially her saying 'babe that thing scares me punch it' and Hefty going 'you got it babe' with zero questions.

Smurfette has always had a caretaking side. A nurturing side. She's soft, gentle, sweet — and yes, that's because she was 'the girl' in an age where most girls were shown like that.

But Vanity has always been image-obsessed and was shown to live in a PINK house. Clumsy was caring, sweet, and so emotionally open that he barely thought twice about telling his friends how much he cared about them. GROUCHY of all Smurfs was shown to love flowers and was one of the ones closest to Baby Smurf.

Smurfette, meanwhile, had a 'takes shit from no-one' personality right from the get-go. She had her own temper and her own bravery. She was even shown to be something of a leader already, such as when she led Greedy and Lazy in a plan to prank Jokey back after a a prank spree.

And what did she do when Lazy fell asleep in the middle of the plan, which required all of them to giggle? She gently admonished him and tickled him to both wake him up and get him laughing for the plan. THAT'S gentle but decisive leadership.

Many female characters from that time period need updates. But I refuse to betray who they are to do that. Smurfette being strong and finding her own Thing instead of just being the girl doesn't require her to suddenly be a kickass who doesn't need help from anyone — it requires playing up the strengths she already had, like emotional empathy and social glue.

Chapter 6: Hefty Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Strength — of body, will, and character.

Job(s): Town protector and strongsmurf.

Appearance: Tall and muscular. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, red heart tattoo on his upper arm.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Smurfette.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult.

The strongest Smurf alive.

He starts off reckless and rarely thinks things through or listens to others' advice, but he matures over time, even eventually taking over as village leader/Redcap along with Smurfette. He loves his family, friends, and village fiercely.

He tends to call older Smurfs 'Sir' and 'Ma'am', especially Alchemist and Warrior.

Everything about him is strong, his emotions included. He cares deeply about the world and people around him. When he learned about tattoos after a journey to a human village, he decided to give himself a heart tattoo — he loves being the resident Strongsmurf, but he wanted others to know right from the first time they see him that there's a bit more to him than just that.

Popular, tough, a little patronizing, and more than a bit dense. But he's never mean and sees those weaker than him as beings to be protected, not attacked.

Hefty cares deeply and is protective — but his Thing, what he NAMED HIMSELF AFTER, isn't his big heart; it's his big muscles.

He is the guy you call to soothe you after a nightmare not because he's emotionally fluent, but because he radiates 'I love you and will tackle God himself if he looks at you funny — and I will win'.

He's the strongsmurf. He spends his days clearing logs from paths without breaking a sweat. His house is filled with dumbbells and zero chairs. He can take on Azrael by himself and only come out with a few deep gashes.

His heart is big, his sense of loyalty is bigger — but his muscles are biggest.

Chapter 7: Clumsy Smurf ♂

Now with fanart! An image drawn by me at the top, and (eventually) AI art at the bottom.

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Clumsiness

Job(s): Crafting and selling pet rocks, firefighter, Firescale Dragonfly tamer and rider

Appearance: Smaller than average height and build, with a face full of freckles. Green eyes. Slightly oversized white hat that always half-covers his eyes, white footsie pants, usually some bandages or patches.

Relatives: Farmer Smurf (older brother), Spelunker Smurf (older brother), Metal Smurf (older brother), Wooly Smurf (older brother), Mason Smurf (older brother), Distractable Smurf (younger brother)

Shipped With: Brainy.

Age Bracket: Young adult.

The first Smurf to ride a Firescale Dragonfly, he discovered that his normal clumsiness doesn't carry over to directing a Dragonfly and it actually gives him something of a leg up — he's already used to sharp turns, quick corrections, maneuvering in chaos, and even being upside down!

He's obsessed with rocks. He collects them, has a rock garden, and even knows most rocks' scientific names (though he can rarely pronounce them).

He speaks with a Southern accent, like most of his family. He falls over and hits into things a lot, hence his name, but never lets accident-prone nature keep him down.

One day he met a nerdy little Smurfling that used a bunch of big words he didn't understand and seemed a bit mean. But this Smurfling actually tried to explain things to Clumsy rather than assume he couldn't understand, and for that Clumsy decided he was his now.

Then the other actually listened when he rambled about rocks, and told him very good, Clumsy when he remembered something right, and read his own books out loud instead of mocking Clumsy's issues with making out the big words. And for that, Clumsy decided he was his forever.

I like when a character is allowed to be flawed.

Clumsy IS an idiot. He always will be. But he respects intelligence rather than resent it, and he always tries to understand even when he knows he probably won't be able to. And he never uses his lack of mental capability as an excuse to be cruel or reckless.

Clumsy has trouble grasping and retaining information, and that isn't a good or even neutral thing — it's a bad one. He's so curious and determined to learn that he'd probably be some level of genius if he was capable of it.

That's part of why he and Brainy work. Subconsciously or not, Brainy recognizes a kindred spirit in him. And it almost doesn't matter that Clumsy can't be a genius — he makes Brainy more determined to be less bluster and more actual intelligence, if only to learn more about Clumsy's own passions.

I tried to let Clumsy be an idiot, one that can become smart in some ways with hard work, but still someone who can never not be an idiot. And that's okay. It sucks, it makes his life harder, but it doesn't make him incapable. His flaws don't have to be erased to make his virtues count. And his own lack doesn't mean he can't appreciate what he has, or that he can't love others that can do what he can't.

Chapter 8: Jokester 'Jokey' Smurf ♂

Now with fanart! An image drawn by me at the top, AI art at the bottom.

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Explosives and weapons design.

Job(s): Delivery Smurf, villager protector

Appearance: Smaller than average height and build, with a slim, wiry body. Orange eyes. White hat that usually has soot stains on it, white footsie pants, open white vest with a yellow squirty flower. Usually has soot on his nose, cheeks, ears, and fingers.

Relatives: Equilibrist Smurf (younger sister)

Shipped With: Magician.

Age Bracket: Young adult.

Small and not particularly strong, but good at running, flipping, jumping, and dodging. One of the fastest Smurfs, he is often sent to delivery emergency messages, which is among the few things he takes seriously and won't mess up for fun.

He spends most of his life happy with being a menace, but he's still a Smurf and all Smurfs want to be helpful in some way, leading him to eventually become upset when he realizes he's worse than useless to the village. Eventually he discovers that the talents he normally uses for pranks — his parkour skills, traps, explosives, and talent for manipulation — have alternative uses in defending the village.

Has many burns from his constant work with explosives. His ears are eternally ringing for exactly the same reason, and while he's not anywhere close to deaf, he does have worst hearing than most Smurfs.

His expressions are always sharper and more extreme than most Smurfs, no matter the situation or emotion. His voice is high-pitched and fast, and he giggles almost constantly. His hyperactivity and lack of fucks to give lead his speech to be somewhat lazy, filled with missing sounds and combined words, though he can be surprisingly eloquent if he puts his mind to it.

He never means to really hurt anysmurf, exactly, but he has little to no concept of safety. Explosives, giant tarantulas, even putting somesmurf in Gargamel's way won't register as particularly dangerous in his brain. He has almost no sense of consequences unless they are made very clear.

He does have lines, however. He understands that babies and small children are fragile. He loves when people yell or otherwise get frustrated from his pranks, but panics and tries to make up for it if they start crying. Once he does realize he's put somesmurf in actual danger, he immediately goes for help or tries to rescue them himself, but almost never learns a lesson from the situation.

Jokey doesn't have great empathy skills. Sometimes, it takes feeling something himself for him to realize it's wrong to make others feel that way. Only after dealing with bullies of his own does Jokey finally, slowly realize how much of a bully he himself is — he'll never stop pranking or being the explosive and abrasive Smurf he's always been, but this Heel Realization does kick off him learning to be kinder and more discerning in his tricks.

Sleeps surrounded by joke boxes and stuffed animals. The only object he really prizes is his joke book, which he memorized ages ago. His best friends are Vanity and Grouchy, their friendship is based on insulting the village and being generally the un-smurfiest Smurfs alive, though they always come through for their fellow Smurfs in a pinch. Another friend of his is Brainy, his absolute favorite target for one simple reason — Brainy is too smart to keep falling for Jokey's jokes, yet still does every single time.

For some reason or another, Brainy plays along with Jokey's games, acts as his straight man and foil on purpose. Jokey will forever love him for it.

Jokey's roommate turned crush is Magician Smurf, who has an explosive side of her own.

He's a mailsmurf. This is why everysmurf consistently falls for his pranks — he times it just right so they fall into a false sense of security because they keep getting real mail and presents from him, and then BOOM! XD

He has a little sister that looks up to him and is gleefully following in his prankster footsteps.

Jokey is not a role model. He's reckless, usually doesn't consider potential consequences before he does something, and thinks that an explosion in someone's face is the height of comedy. He's rarely malicious, but he is ever careless with safety, both his own and others.

Jokey is pretty much allergic to responsibility. But when he sees his little sister about to pull the same sort of reckless, consequence-blind, potentially harmful prank he specializes in? Then, and only then, will he play the voice of reason.

He loves that his little sis is a prankster like him — but he doesn't want her to be a prankster exactly like him. He wants her to be better.

↓ Things I'm unsure if I'll keep ↓

Was once a workaholic weapons expert named Arsenal Smurf who found a passion for pranks and changed forever. When he switched his name to Jokester, he discovered that the easiest way to let everysmurf know was to just tell Nosey.

Chapter 9: Vanity Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Beauty/aesthetic.

Job(s): Interior decorator, skincare expert.

Appearance: Average build but slightly taller than most, with features that are considered particularly desirable. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, a flower (usually made of cloth but sometimes real) tucked behind his left ear, never seen without a hand mirror.

Relatives: Reversal Smurf (younger 'brother' and living reflection)

Shipped With: Grouchy.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult.

His house is pink and covered in flowers, decorated in soft carpets, paintings and statues of himself, vases on pedestals, and so many mirrors. He loves flowers, makeup, decorating, and most of all himself. Good at skincare and such. He likes talking a LOT, especially about himself, and is actually pretty knowledgeable about things related to beauty or mirrors.

He hates eye contact, so is always staring at his mirror. He loves looking at himself, so is always staring at his mirror. He notices just about everything but everysmurf thinks he's completely oblivious because he's apathetic to almost everything but himself.

He loves complaining and insulting others behind closed doors, which is part of what connects Jokey and Grouchy to him. He is genuinely self-obsessed but still capable of care — at his worst, he thought that pictures of himself were the ultimate gift and talking about himself was the ultimate conversation. He does get a bit better over time, due to his relationships to others.

He doesn't treat Reverse very well right after accidentally creating him, but of course Vanity's first time caring about somesmurf else involved his own reflection. This is as well his first time feeling guilty and internalizing the idea that other people, their thoughts and feelings, matter.

He'll never stop being vain, self-obsessed, and in general rather rude. But he isn't actually a narcissist and he certainly isn't a sociopath, and he gets better over time. A little better, at least.

Grouchy and Vanity fell in love because they sat next to each other on a bench.

Vanity spent the entire time talking about himself and complaining about things, not once looking at Grouchy.

Grouchy contributed to the conversation maybe a handful of times, each a proclamation of dislike for something rather than a response to what Vanity said.

Then they went back to their own homes... and returned the next day to sit on the bench again.

Grouchy doesn't want to have to talk beyond a few 'I hate _'s. Vanity doesn't want to focus on another person. Neither wants to be alone.

Vanity doesn't demand that Grouchy talk back, Grouchy doesn't ask Vanity to look at him. And neither is merely tolerating the other — the other is their ideal conversation partner, their safe space, the one person they don't have to change for.

Because they do have to change. Grouchy is overly depressed and angry. Vanity has intense issues connecting to others. They don't need to erase who they are, but they do need to change, and they will — but they still find each other the exact sort of weird they need.

Someday Grouchy will say 'I love you, Vanity' without even thinking about it. Someday Vanity will tell Grouchy he looks absolutely amazing without tying it into his own looks. It will take them a long time to get there.

But that's okay. Because Vanity doesn't need affirmation, he needs someone who's happy to listen to a three hour rant about skincare, all while not making eye contact. Grouchy doesn't need grand gestures of romance, he just needs someone who's willing to complain with him and exist with him and speak AT him without expecting reciprocity.

Neither is perfect, and improvement will be a long road for them. But for now, they are each exactly the sort of imperfect the other is willing — and happy — to work with.

Chapter 10: Grouchy Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Grouchiness.

Job(s): Babysitter.

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. Black hat, black footsie pants, ever-present scowl.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Vanity.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult.

He adopted Baby Foundling after finding him in the woods, and did so surprisingly well with him that he's often trusted with the various other children of Blossom. He's not entirely sure when he became the village's free babysitter, but he... doesn't entirely hate it.

In love with Vanity.

Hates having to talk too much. Hates... pretty much almost everything.

Loves clouds, flying, children, philosophy, flowers, and chaos.

He once thought of naming himself Cloudgazer Smurf, until he discovered his true passion and life's mission — to be the grouchiest son of a Smurf to ever live. His grumpiness and pessimism is real, but he plays it up for his own amusement; he is so committed to the bit, he has trouble even thinking the words 'I love'.

Eventually he learns a bit of balance. Very, very, very far in the future. Baby helps.

He hates Philosopher from the first moment he sees him, and most Smurfs think that said hate only grew over time. He often interrupts Phil's lectures by eating loudly or throwing things at him. They argue near constantly when put within sight of each other.

In truth, the hate fizzled out after their first real conversation, and they are now best friends because they share a very unique love language: constant bickering and heckling.

Grouchy and Vanity fell in love because they sat next to each other on a bench.

Vanity spent the entire time talking about himself and complaining about things, not once looking at Grouchy.

Grouchy contributed to the conversation maybe a handful of times, each a proclamation of dislike for something rather than a response to what Vanity said.

Chapter 11: Handy Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Invention and repair.

Job(s): Woodworking, repair, various odd jobs.

Appearance: Taller and sturdier than most Smurfs, though not like Hefty. ??? eyes. White hat with a brim on the front, blue footsie overalls with a pocket in the front, pencil tucked behind his ear.

Relatives: Okay so I'm possibly making him and Hefty brothers but I'm unsure yet, either way they're close.

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult.

He has two motivations: an intense desire to help others and equally intense random whims. The most practical, grounded, and down-to-Earth Smurf... riiight up until he adds a missile launcher to a nanny bot or gives Scaredy a jetpack.

Everysmurf is incredibly lucky he's too busy keeping the town from collapsing in on itself to really work on his personal projects.

He has a patient pride in Scaredy, who often comes to him when especially frightened or worried. He tries to be a calming, grounding presence for other Smurfs, and he tends to succeed.

He is eternally overworked and pulls many overnights.

He is one of the Smurfs that took to Barista's whole coffee thing the quickest, incorporating it into his morning routine before almost anysmurf else did.

He built a super fast and efficient coffee maker for Barista and prioritizes repairs for her in exchange for unlimited coffee. The rest of Blossom has some complaints about this arrangement...

He carries around a variety of tools, but the one he's most connected with is a wooden mallet.

Chapter 12: Tailor Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Sewing.

Job(s): Tailor, fashion designer

Appearance: Average build but somewhat tall. ??? eyes. White hat with pins stuck in it, white footsie pants with pockets, pincushion strapped to his arm, measuring tape hanging around his neck.

Relatives: Haberdasher (eccentric younger brother)

Shipped With: Harmony.

Age Bracket: Adult.

He's friends with Vanity, Stylist, and other fashionable Smurfs.

Possible related to Stylist, actually.

Tailor is very, very good at what he does. It is useful and he is highly valued for it. He loves what he does and will never stop, which the village greatly appreciates.

Tailor also yells at other Smurfs to shut up when they interrupt Harmony's cacophonous auditory attack music.

Tailor doesn't like Harmony's trumpet playing (he does have functional ears, after all), but he adores Harmony's passion.

Chapter 13: Harmony Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Resilience XD. JK it's actually music.

Job(s): Messenger, announcer, conductor.

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, sunglasses.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Tailor.

Age Bracket: Adult.

Tone deaf.

Plays the trumpet.

Announces messages with a scroll.

Surprisingly talented at conducting.

Never gives up on his passion, no matter how much everysmurf else very desperately wants him to.

Is in a band with Narrator, Metal, Strings, Schemer, and Drummer.

Harmony is very, very bad at what he does. It is pointless and he is borderline hated for it. He loves what he does and will never stop, much to the village's eternal regret.

Harmony prances about with music-note shaped sunglasses that Tailor made for him. Harmony really likes having music note sunglasses and a willing (if cringing) audience.

He adores Tailor's craft without jealousy over his competence.

Gender: Male.

Chapter 17: Mental Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Psychology.

Job(s): Therapist.

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. ...I haven't really decided much about his appearance yet, sorry.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Adult.

A traveling psychologist who visited Blossom, only planning to stay for a couple of days.

He's still there. He does not want to be there. But damn does there need him!

He has personally renamed like a third of the village ("Why the smurf are so many of your names so insulting?? No, you cannot just call someone 'Lazy' as their name—WHAT DO YOU MEAN THERE'S A 'DIMWIT' SMURF?!"). I unashamedly am using him to explain most of the renames I've done.

Mental's Patients

Mental was an expert on the Smurf brain, both biologically and psychologically. If there was anything ansmurf knew about it, then he knew it plus some.

Of course, his brilliance had been entirely for research purposes only. Because that's what he was — a researcher. He knew a lot, but his knowledge didn't have much practical application beyond maybe writing some textbooks. Everything he did was stuck purely in the realm of theory and discussion.

Until he moved to Blossom, a small town somewhat cut off from the rest of the world, where most Smurfs didn't even know psychology was a thing. He hadn't intended to stay, at first, as he was only there for a rest as he journeyed across the world to study.

But something about the town and its Smurfs called to him. It wasn't like they were all deranged or anything, but there were certainly a lot of fascinating cases for him to study. Besides, there were some Smurfs who really needed him.

He hadn't intended to become a psychiatrist, but now he's Dr. Mental. Some of his cases are simple things: mild obsession, insecurity, the regular stuff that Smurfs always need to talk about but never do.

Others... Others are Scaredy, who had never heard of clinical anxiety but is the living definition of it. Others are Poet, whose obsession with verse affects his speech. Others are Jokey or Grouchy, who are nearly incapable of dealing with their emotions in healthy ways.

Then, of course, there are the truly exceptional cases. There's Feral, who was raised by squirrels and barely knows how to be a Smurf, despite Tracker's patient efforts. There's Smurfette, who isn't even really a Smurf, whose mind works more like a human's.

And there's Prophet, the only Smurf in Blossom to be put on permanent house arrest. He's never violent or self-destructive, always quiet and sad, but he can't be let out. Suffering almost constantly from hallucinations, he requires help with even the most basic of daily tasks.

Most know him as Crazy Smurf, but Mental refuses to call him that. He's constantly reminded of his insanity as it is, why must even his name be a reminder? So he calls him Patient or Prophet, encourages him to refer to himself as such, and to always keep working on overcoming his delusions — no matter how impossible it seems.

Beyond that, there's the cases he never signed up for, but are somehow his responsibility anyways — Smurfing drama, couples counseling, new parents panicking because their hatchling can't talk yet.

He still laughs at one memorable incident where Brainy insisted that Harmony must be insane for thinking his 'music' sounded good, and got half the village on his side before he'd even finished speaking. Explaining the difference between 'insane' and 'thinks differently' had taken Mental the better part of a week, though he's still not entirely sure Brainy was actually wrong...

Mental's life has never been boring — he traveled the world during his studies, after all — but it was a fairly normal kind of exciting, nothing like his life since he came to Blossom.

Somehow, he found the one thing he never considered in this secluded little town: a home. And he couldn't be happier, truly!

Even if he really, really wishes he wasn't the only therapist...

Chapter 18: Prophet Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Prophecy.

Job(s): Non-applicable.

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Young-ish adult?

Once known as Crazy Smurf, he's a poor Smurf who was driven insane by his own ability to see the future. He often hallucinates, though sometimes the hallucinations turn out to be visions, making it all the harder for him to heal as there's always a chance that the bizarre things he sees are real.

He is self-aware of his own issues but unable to do anything about them. For his own safety and the safety of others, he was put on house arrest, with different Smurfs taking turns visiting him each day to talk and deliver food/books/etc.

When Mental Smurf moved to town, he immediately took on 'Crazy Smurf' as a patient, though he refused to call him that and instead renamed him Patient (and later Prophet when he learned of his abilities). While he's still on house arrest and still has issues, with Mental's help he's doing better and is far happier nowadays.

Basically my fix for Crazy Smurf, because mental issues shouldn't be glorified or turned into a punchline. They suck, they make people's lives harder, and they are bad things that some people unfortunately have to deal with.

Chapter 19: Narcolepsy Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Sleeping.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult.

My version of Lazy(/Sleepy/Slouchy/etc), he was renamed by Mental.

He is surprisingly good at languages, and is friends with Chatterbox.

He has a deep wonder for the world around him and hates that he misses so much of it do to his sleeping. He especially loves sunrises and music.

He is close to Insomniac, who often wakes him up to enjoy the sunrise or other such things with him.

He drags around a pillow as a safety measure for his constant passing out.

Chapter 20: Insomniac Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Unable to easily fall asleep.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants. Deep bags under his eyes and usually a tired but genuine smile.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult.

A chronic insomniac (duh) who is close with Narcolepsy (brothers? Best friends? Lovers? I can't decide yet).

He shares Narcolepsy's love of sunrises and sunsets, waking up the other to watch them with him. He loves many things, like long stories and shooting stars and warm milk and soft blankets. He may always be exhausted, but at least he's awake to see so much of this beautiful world...

Chapter 21: Greedy Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Cooking

Relatives: Spelunker Smurf (brother), Metal Smurf (brother), Wooly Smurf (brother), Mason Smurf (brother), Clumsy Smurf (younger brother), Distractible Smurf (younger brother)

Shipped With: Honey.

Age Bracket: Adult.

He keeps snails that he calls slimies, referring to himself as their daddy. He is very protective over them. He's trained them to respond to whistle and babble commands.

A hardworking, no-nonsense type of Smurf who'd rather tend his fields than get caught up in whatever nonsense the others have caused that day... unless it involves snail racing. He loves snail racing.

He once freed a djinn named Gourdy, who then decided he was his best friend forever. Farmer regrets the life choices that led to him being followed around by a pint-sized, magically inept terror that wants to take his work away from him and won't go away.

Chapter 23: Nosey Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: snooping around in other people's business and spreading rumors like wildfires Investigative reporting.

Job(s): Reporter for The Blossom Times.

Appearance: Uh... I haven't decided yet?

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Camera.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult, I guess?

She used to be called Gossip but changed her name so that her articles would be taken more seriously. It did not work, but she likes the name Nosey better anyways.

Nosey does not seek to spread facts.

Her entire personality is "Of coooourse I can keep a secret, you can trust me!" → [publishes the entire conversation while omitting the sanest facts and twisting the remaining ones into juicy-sounding nonsense].

She doesn't care about journalistic integrity. She cares about the SPECTACLE.

And Camera is always right behind her, calmly doctoring photographs with internal glee, while Editor facepalms in the background.

Stoic and monotone, he doesn't say much (though he's not mute) or smile often, but he's not depressed — he's just Like That.

Very loyal to and is in love with Nosey.

Chapter 26: The Decorator Twins ♂ ♂

BLUE DECORATOR SMURF

Gender: Male.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Poooooossibly Social?? Unless I make them brothers or best friends instead...

Age Bracket: Young or older-young adult.

He was originally named Nobody because of how forgettable he was.

He was renamed Pushover because he wouldn't say no to anything, but he learned to say no and thus went back to being called Nobody.

He eventually learns to use his forgettability to become a spy codenamed Stealthy/Secret. Few know about his double life.

He is close to Social, Scaredy, and Schemer.

Chapter 28: Social Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Social connecting, party planning, networking.

Job(s): Community organizer and party planner.

Appearance: Slightly taller than average but not by much. Blue eyes. White hat, white footsie pants.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Poooooossibly Nobody?? Unless I make them brothers or best friends instead...

Age Bracket: Young or older-young adult.

Jokingly named 'Everybody' as a counterpart to Nobody, he eventually goes by 'Social', planning parties and get-togethers. He is one of Nobody's only friends (brothers??? lovers?? friends??) and one of the only Smurfs to know his secret identity as Stealthy/Secret.

Chapter 29: Scaredy Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Caution, warning others, safety precautions.

Job(s): Lookout and safety inspector.

Appearance: Average or smaller than average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, almost always shaking.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Younger or older-young adult.

Combined with Panicky/Paranoid/Worry/Worrier/etc.

He becomes the superhero 'Supersmurf' with the help of Handy. Though still scared, Handy's inventions give him the bravery to try and help — even if he usually ends up causing even more trouble.

His best friend is Handy, who he sees as a protective and calming figure.

He has a terrible stammer that only gets worse when he's afraid, and was known by the nickname 'Stutters' as a Smurfling.

Possibly sleepwalks? Possibly steals things when he sleepwalks, and then freaks out because he thinks there's a thief in the village? I need more research on him, honestly...

Despite his fear or maybe because of it, he cares deeply for the wellbeing of others and always tries to keep the village safe — even if the 'threat' he's protecting them from is only in his head.

Chapter 30: Distractible 'Dez' Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Stupidity Curiosity

Job(s): Firefighter (unfortunately).

Appearance: ??? height and build, freckles. Green eyes. I'm pretty sure he just looks like a regular Smurf, doesn't he?

Relatives: Farmer Smurf (older brother), Spelunker Smurf (older brother), Metal Smurf (older brother), Wooly Smurf (older brother), Mason Smurf (older brother), Clumsy Smurf (older brother)

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Young adult.

He was originally called things such as Dimwitty/Sloppy/Table-Eating/Dopey/Gullible/Clueless/etc. Then Mental meets him and renames him ("Does anysmurf have a less insulting name for him?!") 'Distractible', as his attention span is very short and easily caught by random things. He can't actually pronounce that, though, and instead goes by 'Dez'.

With Mental's help, he eventually learns to properly function. Or, at least to function well enough to be a firefighter... who occasionally starts fires by accident. And on purpose.

Okay, so maybe Dimwitty wasn't the worst name for him.

Chapter 31: Boxer Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Boxing.

Job(s): Village protector.

Appearance: Larger than average height and build, and very muscular. ??? eyes.

White hat, white footsie pants, red boxing gloves.

He often carries boxes around and is in charge of gift wrapping during the holidays.

Chapter 32: Boo Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Uh...

Job(s): ???

Appearance: Smaller than average height and build. Solid black eyes with glowing white pupils. Covered in a white sheet that only shows his eyes and a jagged mouth, white arms, white shoes that seem to not fully touch the ground.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: ???

He disappeared into the forest one Halloween and came back... different.

He loves scaring people, but only in good-natured ways. Like the holiday he represents, he is incredibly creepy but ultimately very silly and socially-inclined. He tends to communicate with screeching, gasping, rasping sort of noises and growls — when he does speak, his voice is deep and echoing.

He silently follows people, especially children, if he sees them wandering around at night. This can come off as menacing, but his goal isn't to freak them out — it's to freak out anything else that might decide to follow them around.

(He legitimately doesn't see the failure in that logic, but boy do others see it XD)

Chapter 33: Sunny Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Meteorology.

Job(s): Weather Smurf.

Appearance: LISTEN THE GIRLS ARE HARD TO DESIGN, OKAY? 🙄

Relatives: Stormy (sister)

Shipped With: Possibly Stargazer unless I make him her brother instead.

Age Bracket: Young adult or older-young adult.

An extroverted and cheery weather Smurf

Chapter 34: Stargazer Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Astronomy.

Job(s): Astronomer.

Appearance: Probably just a normal Smurf but with a telescope, honestly.

Relatives: Possibly Sunny and Stormy are his sisters unless I end up shipping him with one.

Shipped With: Possibly Sunny or Stormy unless I end up making him their brother.

Age Bracket: Young adult or older-young adult.

An introverted but friendly astronomer.

He's the kind of guy that spends most of his time alone on a hill staring up at the sky, almost never purposely seeking out other people, yet smiles warmly and genuinely if another person happens to cross paths with him.

Chapter 35: Stormy Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Meteorology.

Job(s): Weather Smurf.

Appearance: ...black hair?

Relatives: Sunny (sister)

Shipped With: Possibly Stargazer unless I make him her brother instead.

Age Bracket: Young adult or older-young adult.

My version of Smurfstorm.

A grumpy weather Smurf with incredibly good aim and a talent for archery.

Maybe related to Grouchy? Or Tracker, because of the archery thing? Or maybe shipped with Tracker, instead...

Chapter 36: Magician 'Maggie' Smurf ♀

Gender: Female

Special Trait: Sleight of hand, magic tricks, explosions.

Job(s): Magician/entertainer.

Appearance: Average or smaller than average height and build. Purple eyes. Black hair that she artificially straightens and wears as a bob cut with bangs. A sparkly purple and gold magician outfit.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Jokey.

Age Bracket: Young adult.

She has a pet rabbit.

She and Jokey had little choice in becoming mushroommates, and each tried to run the other out... via a quickly escalating series of pranks that completely disregarded any sense of safety or sanity whatsoever.

She rolls her eyes at Jokey's antics, but she always laughs the loudest once he's out of earshot.

Chapter 37: Reversal 'Rev' Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Animal riding/training.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: Vanity but younger, with his flower on the opposite side, and with a brown backpack that he's always holding the strap of (as a replacement for Vanity's mirror).

Relatives: Vanity Smurf (older 'brother' and accidental creator)

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older Smurfling.

AKA: Reflection/Ytinav/Reverse/Mirror Smurf.

Eventually he goes by Ryder after discovering his talent for training and riding a variety of animals.

Vanity's reflection brought to life and 'little brother'.

He has a habit of talking/moving backwards, though he learns how to act/speak normally over time, even though it remains easier for him to work backwards. He is dominant in the opposite hand than Vanity.

Though not nearly as vain as his creator, he does care about his appearance a great deal and gets overly upset when bruised or dirtied.

He is one of Dreamy's crew. While traveling across the world, he learns about horses, designs a rabbit-sized saddle, and finds his Thing.

Sometimes he has nightmares of becoming a reflection again, and he tends to avoid mirrors because of this. He maybe doesn't have a reflection of his own, I haven't decided yet.

He is extremely protective over his backpack and especially of the saddle blueprints/sketches he keeps inside, nothing breaks through his composure so fast as it getting damaged does.

He is extremely close to Equilibrist, Glider, Feral, Haberdasher, and Cheshire. He is the leader of their friend group, nicknamed 'Chief' by the others. This is due to his introspective nature, ability to recognize others' strengths and how best to use them, and his genuinely very kind and contagiously upbeat personality.

He believes strongly in self-love, not just in himself but in others — learning that someone, especially someone he cares for, doesn't like something about themselves genuinely horrifies him. Cracking a self-deprecating joke around him will immediately result in hugs and relentless affirmations of beauty/care/specialness/etc.

He doesn't swear often, but when he does it's like a sailor. This is because of a combination of sharing most of Vanity's Smurflinghood memories (Vanity is adept at insulting others) and living with Dreamy's crew of sorta-sailors for five years.

He was accidentally created when Vanity was still a Smurfling, and still looks exactly like Vanity did on that day — he won't age until his actual years-lived catches up to his biological age.

Chapter 38: Equilibrist 'Quil' Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Balance.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: Smaller than average height and build. ??? eyes. I haven't decided much about how she looks, but she has orange pigtails.

Relatives: Jokey (older brother)

Shipped With: Ryder, maybe? Or Glider, possibly??

Age Bracket: Older Smurfling.

Jokey's unicycle-obsessed little sister. She went by 'Pigtails' as a Smurfling.

She is almost always in motion, and rarely stands straight or still — she is flipping, juggling, doing a handstand, balancing in improbable ways, cackling, jumping, exploding with energy.

She is excellent at multitasking and very competent in her own ways. She sees insults and playful ribbing as love, but doesn't always realize when she's gone too far or if she's forgotten to mix the teasing with genuine reminders of care.

She looks up to her big brother and gleefully follows in his footsteps as a prankster... but she's learning something at a young age that Jokey is still struggling with — restraint and forethought. Her signature isn't a bomb gift like her big bro, it's a glitter bomb.

THIS IS A CANON SMURF THAT I JUST MADE BETTER, SEARCH IT.

Chapter 39: Pilot Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Flying.

Job(s): Transporting people, animals, and cargo through the air.

Appearance: Smurf but aviator.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

He trains and rides birds. He's good at piloting Handy's flying machines as well.

Chapter 40: Glider Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Hanggliding.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. ???

Relatives: Maybe Pilot? For some reason I keep thinking that Narcolepsy would be a good choice...

Shipped With: Equilibrist?? Ryder?? One of the other older-Smurfling sorts...

Age Bracket: Older Smurfling.

A young Smurf who came up with the idea of hanggliders before learning they were actually a thing, and then got Handy to build one for him. As his name suggests, he loves hanggliding. Maybe has a flying squirrel friend or doll or something?

He is a thrill seeker and daredevil, but surprisingly grounded, reality-based, and dry-witted. He's the master of deadpan and is usually giving someone a flat look... right up until he gets into the air, then he's a wide-eyed, excited kid whooping in pure joy as he plummets towards the ground.

He is extremely confident. Overly so, even. In a time of danger, his idea to escape was jumping off a tower with a torn tapestry and some broken sticks haphazardly turned into a flying thing that he would later learn is called a hangglider. That's his naming origin, jumping off a cliff because he believed he could fly. But his confidence is also his strength — he believes in himself no matter what anyone else says, and he won't flinch or hesitate when the moment calls for it.

He has a bit of a crush rivalry with Equilibrist.

He doesn't need others to boost his confidence, but he does believe that friends are supposed to compliment and encourage each other. This clashed with Quil's 'I insult you because you are mine' style of friendship and led to misunderstandings. But they eventually met in the middle — Glider learned that some teasing is okay and that love can be shown in many ways, while Quil realized that friendly teasing has a limit and needs to be mixed with genuine 'you are amazing and I love you' moments.

If he's not flat-out related to Pilot, then Pilot is still at least his mentor/somesmurf he looks up to.

Possibly close to Handy as well, considering the origin...

Chapter 41: Security Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Law/law enforcement, protection, security system and restraint designing.

Job(s): Sheriff, police officer, bodyguard, Prison Warden, street traffic co-ordinator, etc etc.

Appearance: Bigger than average height and build, but only slightly. ??? eyes. Dark blue hat with a hard black brim in front and a strap around his chin, dark blue footsie pants with belt, dark sunglasses, a strap across his chest with a badge pinned to it, almost always carrying a nightstick.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Maybe Schemer?

Age Bracket: Adult.

You think that Mental's the most stressed out Smurf in Blossom? Think again, because here comes Security Smurf!

You'll see what I mean with the next few profiles.

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Resource management.

Job(s): Procuring and distributing resources.

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. ???

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

He handles the town's money and legally procures new resources from other species' markets to spread among the population of Blossom, while as well handling the distribution of goods produced in the village itself. He has 'absolutely no idea' what Lucky gets up to.

Chapter 43: Lucky Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Thievery/cons.

Job(s): Procuring and redistributing resources.

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. ???

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

His friends call him Thief/Gambler/Con Artist.

He used to be very unlucky until he discovered a talent for gambling and thievery.
Best friends with Trader.

Chapter 44: Schemer Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Strategy/planning.

Job(s): Like he'd tell you XD

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. ??

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Security?

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

He used to be named Flutist, due to his love of playing the flute, until he discovered a knack for strategy. He has a pet bird.

He has a fast-and-loose regard for the law and is Security's vitriolic best friend.

Chapter 45: Snake Charmer Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Hypnotism.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. Idk, I think he had a robe and a bumpy flute thing, and bare feet. And maybe a hoop earring?

Relatives: Potter (brother)

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

Based on 'Fakir Smurf' in canon.

He can talk to snakes. He really likes snakes. Most Smurfs do not like snakes. He does not care.

He can hypnotize anysmurf. He likes hypnotizing Smurfs and making them dance.

Chapter 46: Chocolate/Apprentice Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Candy making (especially chocolate)

Job(s): Candyman, sorcerer's apprentice.

Appearance: Average height and build. Orange eyes. Dark blue hat covered in stars, dark blue robe with oversized sleeves, white shoes. When among Smurfs, he wears striped overalls and a white hat.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

A chocolate maker who secretly works for Gargamel.

But like, is overall a nice(ish) guy and a normal Smurf. He's just a punchclock villain acting as Gargamel's long-suffering and exasperated assistant/minion who does his bidding in exchange for magic lessons.

So Gargamel's like "Smurf! Go gather mushrooms for my potion!"

And he's all like "[long dramatic sigh] yes Gargamel..." and grumbles while he drags a smurf-sized basket behind him to get the stupid mushrooms. XD

Because his teacher is Gargamel, he's very bad at magic, and even more accident-prone than his so-called mentor.

Despite everything, a part of him is fond of Gargamel. A little. Mostly he just thinks he's an idiot.

Bonds with Azrael over shared annoyance and exasperation with their 'master'.

Maybe there would be a moment before the other Smurfs know where Chocolate Smurf almost blows his cover because he forgets he's supposed to fear Azrael — maybe even one where he secretly talks Azrael into not attacking because of something happening that day (maybe some contest he's been looking forward to is happening, maybe he had a moment of sympathy for another Smurf's goals, whatever), and then badly covers up how he 'escaped' Azrael and is believed anyways.

In my head, it wouldn't be obvious at first that Chocolate and Apprentice are the same Smurf, with the rare but not unique eye color being the biggest clue. There'd be some fakeouts and foreshadowing before the audience learns (long before the other Smurfs do) that they're one and the same.

I as well find it funny to imagine Chocolate causing magical mishaps in the village and trying to hide his abilities from the other Smurfs. Maybe even accidentally cursing a batch of chocolate and trying to deal with it in increasingly ridiculous ways before his secret double life can be revealed.

I figure there would be a lot of back-and-forth in his arc, keeping the audience guessing which side he'll fully commit to for a long time before it finally happens. I want him to be someone the audience begins to root for, before reminding them that he's someone they need to root against.

I think that if he was ever discovered and had to choose between being Chocolate or Apprentice, he'd choose Apprentice. He may be a punchclock villain, but that's still a type of villain.

He might avoid actively hurting or capturing his fellow Smurfs, but he still feeds intel to and actively assists the man who is trying to turn them all into tests subjects and power sources.

He might have a place in the village and not actively hate any of his fellow Smurfs, but he has no love for them either. I suppose I have to correct myself, because he isn't a normal Smurf — he's a wizard's henchman, and it's a role he thrives in no matter how exasperated or annoyed or overburdened he gets.

He's not exactly evil, he's just... putting his own self interests first, in the worst way.

He wouldn't be completely selfish, though. He's still a Smurf, after all, and he'd have his moments of being genuinely compassionate or helpful. He'd probably even have a scene after switching fully to Gargamel's side where he uses what little magic he has to save the Smurfs from some other threat before running off back to Gargamel's hovel, showing he still somewhat cares about his own kind even after everything — just not more than he cares about the life he's built on the villains' side.

Chapter 47: Flirtatious 'Flirty' Smurf ♂

Now with fanart! An image drawn by me at the top, and (eventually) AI art at the bottom.

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Romance.

Job(s): Dance Instructor.

Appearance: Taller than average height and build. Purple eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, rose colored scarf and matching earrings.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Yes.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

An overly flirty dance instructor, specializing in tango. He loves books, particularly romance novels. He plays up his genuinely flirty nature in order to get people to leave him alone and let him read.

He somewhat obsessively straightens and reseals his scarf, a soothing gesture that helps him think and relax.

He has many ex-boyfriends and -girlfriends, from multiple different species. Despite his habit of casual flings, he deeply desires someone to actually love and spend the rest of his life with.

He's an introvert that masquerades as an extrovert so hard that he gets MORE time alone with his books.

He's asked out plenty of people for real (hence why he has so many exes) and while none of them have worked out, he remains unphazed and just keeps trying.

His over-the-top flirting is almost like the dances he teaches, carefully planned but no less passionate for the preparation.

Sometimes he flirts to woo others, and sometimes he does it to push them away without hurting their feelings (he's juuuust charming enough and has enough respect for hard boundaries to keep him liked even with his somewhat pushy flirting). That's the game. That's the dance.

And someday he'll find someone who's genuinely just as over-the-top as he is, who will kiss him passionately in public and dance with him even when there's no music... And then will turn it up to 11 so everyone else is annoyed by them being 'that couple' and will run off, and then they'll both get to read together in peace.

That's Flirty. Absolutely ridiculous, strategic, and hopeful in a way that WILL pay off in the best possible way someday. And until it does, he'll just continue to enjoy the dance.

Chapter 48: Detective Lockpick Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Deduction.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: Very tall and thin. ??? eyes. Deerstalker hat, brown longcoat that's always buttoned up, white shoes, a brown bubble pipe, usually carrying a magnifying glass.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Strings??

Age Bracket: Adult.

He's basically just Sherlock Holmes but more ridiculous. His 'Watson' is Doctor Dabber.

His attempts to solve mysteries involve an inordinate amount of breaking and entering, but that's okay because he's really good at picking locks.

Chapter 49: Doctor Dabbler Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Good (but not great) at just about everything, adaptable, jack-of-all-trades.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat with a metal head mirror, white footsie pants, White labcoat, black stethoscope around his neck, usually carrying a medical bag and a walking stick.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Nurse???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

A nomad who accidentally became Blossom's doctor because his subpar knowledge of healing was more than anysmurf else in the village had. He has a can-do attitude and a limp.

He has a close friendship with Detective Lockpick.

Chapter 50: Nurse Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Assisting and paperwork.

Job(s): Nurse.

Appearance: Smurf but Nurse.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ??? Dabbler??

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

She learned some medical stuff out of necessity due to Blossom not really having any healers, but it's not really her passion. When Dabbler moved to the tiny village and stepped in as a doctor, she became his assistant, a role she's much happier in.

Chapter 51: Gutsy Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Bravery.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: Wavy red-orange hair, thick eyebrows, green eyes, Scottish outfit complete with kilt. I don't really know beyond that.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Young adult or older-young adult.

A Scottish Smurf with a temper and zero fucks to give, she is scared of absolutely nothing (even when she should be).

She really likes bears.

While kind and friendly, her temper can get the best of her and she will throw fists if she gets angry enough. But she'll always apologize if she hurts somesmurf that didn't deserve it... provided it's proven to her why they didn't deserve it.

Chapter 52: Tracker Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Wilderness survival, basically?

Job(s): Berry gathering, village protection, search-and-rescue, scouting...

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. White hat with feathers and leaves stuck in the side, white footsie pants, quiver full of arrows and a bow.

Relatives: Wild Smurf (adopted little brother/son)

Shipped With: Stormy, maybe, because archery?

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

Combined with a lot of the canon outdoorsy Smurfs, including that Fletcher one.

He's good at archery, and at making the materials necessary for such. He's good at making simple weapons out of wood.

He has LOTS of pets.

He lives in a tree-house right outside the village.

Chapter 53: Wild Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Animal communication, wilderness survival.

Job(s): ???

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. Hat made of leaves, loincloth made of leaves, wears things made of shed squirrel fur in winter.

Relatives: Tracker (adoptive father/older brother), squirrel family (adoptive parents and siblings)

Shipped With: ??? One of the other older-Smurfling sorts?

Age Bracket: Older Smurfling.

Some Smurfs call him Feral or Squirrely Smurf.

He lived and grew up with a squirrel family in the woods. He was found and taken in by Tracker, and with his help, he's slowly learning how to act like a person.

He is just as wild as you would think, physically dangerous when provoked, and a total sweetheart who learned the term 'self-care' and immediately connected it to being in a cuddle pile with his squirrel 'siblings'.

Chapter 54: Lantern Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Good night sight, naturally nocturnal schedule, little to no fear of the dark.

Job(s): Lantern-lighter, guide, nightshift village guard.

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, long pole with a lantern hanging from it.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Young adult, older-young adult, or adult.

A quiet, calm, mild sort of Smurf. He enjoys how quiet night is. He has a pet firefly.

Has a giant, round lantern that he sometimes carries around on his back when the village needs extra light.

Despite his easygoing personality, there is a reason he's a guard and he can be dangerous with his pole when he wants to be.

Possibly has a living shadow, idk.

He's close to Boo, Insomniac, and Stargazer. They're the night crew, awake while the rest of the world sleeps.

Lantern patrols the village while Boo silently floats past him, unafraid of the ghostly Smurf after all this time. They share a nod, a quiet greeting, as they continue on their own ways.

He waves to Stargazer up on his hill, and glances at Insomniac laying on his roof, both watching the stars. And he pauses, for a moment, to look up and watch the stars with them.

He lives in the liminal space of shadow and starlight, and there he is at peace. Because there, in the night, he is at home.

Chapter 55: Barista Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Coffee brewing.

Job(s): Coffee maker and shop owner.

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. ??? hair. White hat, white shirt, white footsie pants, green apron, colorful hair clips and decorations in different shapes.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

She came from a different village and brought coffee with her. Smurfs in a small village like Blossom don't always do well with outsiders, but she was instantly beloved.

She rides a dwarf calico cat named Starburst and has a coffee shop (with wheels, so her cat can pull it) called 'Starburst Coffee'.

Chapter 56: Captain Dreamy Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Wanderlust.

Job(s): Captain.

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, though maybe he wears a pirate hat and a longcoat or something after becoming a Captain.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Young adult or older-young adult.

As a Smurfling, he once had a dream where he went to another planet and met alien Smurfs. This set off his habit of imagining the wider world and getting lost in daydreams... until he realized that maybe those daydreams don't have to stay merely dreams.

He led a crew of volunteers to explore the world for a handful of years, bringing back tales of adventure and several new friends.

He spent years dreaming of reaching the stars; he hasn't reached them yet, but he's traveled the world trying to, and that's still pretty great.

Chapter 57: Philosopher 'Phil' Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Philosophy

Job(s): Lecturer, public speaker

Appearance: Idk, maybe he has a powdered wig or glasses or something.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Adult.

A pompous and theatrical Smurf with a flair for the philosophical, he came to Blossom after meeting Dreamy's crew. He is intelligent (even able to spot Jokey's prank box for the trap it was upon first meeting him), but doesn't use that intelligence in any practical way.

Grouchy Smurf constantly interrupts his lectures and contradicts him for seemingly no reason other than to be contrary. Philosopher thinks of him as his favorite debate partner and finds his borderline nihilism absolutely fascinating.

Chapter 58: Honey Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Bees.

Job(s): Beekeeping.

Appearance: Average or smaller than average height and build. Orange eyes? Extra curly honey-orange hair. White beekeeping outfit, sometimes the typical white hat/dress/shoes.

Relatives: Buggy, probably.

Shipped With: Farmer.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

Fear her, for she is queen of the hives! (Dramatic lightning flash and ominous buzzing)

She's sweet, silly, and low-key terrifying by Smurf standards. She cares deeply for her thousands of buzzy pets, and they care for her in turn, constantly swarming around her.

Chapter 59: Buggy Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Creepy Crawlies.

Job(s): Entomologist and town vet.

Appearance: I'm thinking a lot of green and vaguely bug-like appearance herself, maybe with large sunglasses or buckteeth and a habit of spraying spittle when she talks to enhance her 'basement dweller with specialized interest, zero filter, and unfortunate usefulness' vibe.

Relatives: Honey, probably.

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Young adult or older-young adult.

An eccentric, upbeat, socially awkward entomologist and the closest thing Blossom has to a town vet. Very bubbly, loud, and with little-to-no sense of personal space.

Brainy does not like interacting with her. Brainy has a pet ladybug he adores. Brainy has to interact with her.

Chapter 60: Woolshear 'Wooly' Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Caring for wooly (angora?) rabbits

Job(s): Rabbit farmer and wool... Maker? Gatherer? What do you call someone that works with wool, exactly?

Appearance: Average height and build, freckles. Green eyes. Fluffy white wool hat, white footsie pants, red bandana around his neck, brown belt with a side pouch for his trusty sheers.

Relatives: Farmer Smurf (brother), Spelunker Smurf (brother), Metal Smurf (brother), Mason Smurf (brother), Clumsy Smurf (younger brother), Distractible Smurf (younger brother)

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Adult.

Listen he's not that complicated a guy — he's Wooly. He likes wool, he's probably close to Tailor and Farmer, maybe he bonds with Ryder over rabbit saddles, and he's basically a Smurf cowboy. That's it.

Chapter 61: Historian 'History' Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Memory, insightfulness.

Job(s): Historian, Mythologist.

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. ???. Always carrying books and probably has a question mark symbol incorporated somewhere in her design.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Young adult.

She has Luna Lovegood vibes, with a sprinkle of Riddler, and likes revealing deep truths in the most enigmatic of ways.

She meets and bonds with Brainy when he first moves into the library, and becomes his friend without him realizing it. She's part of what sparks him into realizing he's actually happy 'merely' being a librarian.

Admittedly I would ship her with Brainy if I wasn't such a Brainy/Clumsy shipper...

She is best friends with Barista, maybe sisters.

Chapter 62: Firelily Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Gardening.

Job(s): Gardener, Firescale Rider.

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. ???.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Young adult.

My version of Smurfily.

She is a happy-go-lucky gardener who used to be called 'Lily', until she discovered a talent for Firescale Dragonfly Riding, at which point she proudly redubbed herself 'Firelily'.

Maybe she can become a firefighter later on?

She is close friends with Clumsy and I would ship them if I didn't ship Brainy/Clumsy.

Chapter 63: Berserker Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Fighting, blunt force.

Job(s): Village protector.

Appearance: Nearly three times the height of any other Smurf, with bulging muscles and arms so long he knuckle-walks like a gorilla. ??? eyes. ???.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Adult.

I just think he's a fun idea for background shots and occasional physical comedy.

He's the second strongest Smurf there is. The first would be Hefty, which would lead to Humor™ when they train against each other.

Chapter 64: Flighty/Indecisive Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: He'll get back to you on that...

Job(s): A different one every week.

Appearance: Average height and build. Blue eyes. White hat, white footsie pants — at least Smurf standards means he doesn't have to decide which outfit to wear every day.

Relatives: Maybe Scaredy?

Shipped With: He can't pick a name, you really think he's going to pick a partner?

Age Bracket: Young adult.

He can't decide on anything, not even a name!

The Decorator Twins have a love-hate relationship with him, as he keeps asking them to repaint his house one or the other's color... over and over and over again...

Chapter 65: Sandy Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Beach and ocean stuff.

Job(s): Lifeguard.

Appearance: ??? height and build. ??? eyes. Tanned, red and white stripes shorts, bare feet, whistle hanging around his neck, shell bracelet, sunglasses, white hat.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Marine, probably.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult.

Sits in a really high chair and sunbathes while he waits for Smurfs to get into beach-based trouble. Likes reading simple, borderline trashy books and magazines.

Constant sun exposure means he rarely feels exhausted, even when having to swim while pulling heavy Smurfs out of the water.

Chapter 66: Skipper Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Boating..? River navigation? Otters??

Job(s): I didn't think this out very well, okay?

Appearance: ...Australian.

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: Another good candidate for Marine, actually.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

Rides an otter. Australian, complete with accent. Based on the otter Skipper from Redwall.

Likes skipping stones.

Chapter 67: Marine 'Mary/Mari' Smurf ♀

Gender: Female.

Special Trait: Water.

Appearance: Idk, watery colors and a diver outfit.

Relatives: Probably whichever watery Smurfs I don't ship her with.

Shipped With: Some sort of watery Smurf.

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

Basically most of the water-based Smurfs (Scuba Smurf, Marine Smurf, etc) from canon combined into one character.

Chapter 68: Actor 'Tori' Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Behavioral analysis and mimicry.

Job(s): Actor.

Appearance: Average height and build. Blue eyes. Whatever outfit he needs (he's Tailor's best/worst customer).

Relatives: Maybe Scaredy?

Shipped With: Again, maybe Scaredy?

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

He was once known as Timid/Timmy due to his shyness, then Mimic, and eventually Actor. He's a Smurf who got over his shyness by mimicking others — it worked, helping to genuinely grow his confidence, while as well unlocking a love of the theater.

He's close to other entertainment-based Smurfs like Magician and Cinema, but develops a surprising friendship with Mental as well, due to his knack for behavioral study.

Chapter 69: Cinema Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Movies/film.

Job(s): Movies.

Appearance: Idk.

Relatives: Camera?

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

Cinema is the first Smurf to develop an interest in moving pictures, and remains the only Smurf that really works on them. He was once named Director, but decided to change his name after getting more involved in all different aspects of showmaking. He has a close friendship with Camera, Actor, and Narrator, possibly being related to one or more of them.

Chapter 70: Stylist Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Hair and makeup.

Age Bracket: Adult.

A Smurf who specializes in hair and makeup. He can dye, cut, and style as needed.

Chapter 71: Modelling 'Mo/Momo' Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Posing, looking good.

Job(s): Modeling.

Appearance: Taller than average with a good build. Turquoise eyes. Only wears the latest fashions.

Job(s): Mime.

Appearance: Smurf but mime.

Age Bracket: Adult.

Other potential names: World-Gazer, Author, Announcer.

He's able to see the fourth wall, and writes books based on what he sees.

He has a habit of narrating whatever's happening around him, much to other Smurfs' annoyance.

He's probably close to Dreamy, and was maybe part of his crew.

He likes musical instruments and is in a band with several other Smurfs.

He has a very calming voice that somehow gets more annoying the longer you listen to it.

He's maybe close to Harmony, Drummer, and the News Crew, for the whole announcing news thing...

Chapter 75: Drummer Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Making what he says sound official and important even with a silly little drum hanging from a strap around his neck.

Job(s): Announcer, drummer.

Appearance: Average height and build. ??? eyes. White hat, white footsie pants, drum on a strap around his neck.

Relatives: Pilot??? Painter?? Historian??

He's part of Dreamy's crew and very enthusiastic about seeing the world.

Rides a parrot?

Chapter 80: Haberdasher 'Dash' Smurf ♂

Gender: Male

Special Trait: Hat-making, tea-making.

Job(s): Hat-making and party planning.

Appearance: ??? height and build. Heterochromic eyes. Buck teeth and freckles. Tall striped top hat, oversized bowtie or sometimes scarf, eccentric clothes in various bright colors.

Relatives: Tailor (older brother)

Shipped With: One of the other older-Smurfling sorts, maybe Equilibrist, or Cheshire?

Age Bracket: Older Smurfling.

Other names I considered: Millinery/Teamaker/Tea Party/Haberdash/Hatter.

He has a friendly tea-vs-coffee rivalry with Barista.

He's basically just the Mad Hatter but young and Smurf.

He is both anxiety-prone and ever cheerful. He is extremely theatrical, borderline incapable of taking anything seriously, and has to turn everything into performance.

Mildly injured? He's dying.

A friend stops by? They simply must have a tea party.

Casual insult? The utmost betrayal which he of course takes maximum offense to.

Gets into minor trouble with an authority figure/parent/friend? HE'S DOOMED.

Life is his stage and he lives for the spotlight.

Despite his love of flair, he is a deeply caring being. He's always polite (albeit in a performative, victorian way) and is a natural caretaker for others — tea parties might be his obsession, but they're also the way he says "sit down, relax, eat something tasty, exist in a calm place for a while — you are loved and safe and don't need to take anything too seriously right now, because nothing serious can exist in the same room as a top hat-wearing loon like me".

He pulls his hat over his eyes when scared/stressed/nervous/etc.

He tends to end certain sentences with 'wut' (not slang-speak, but archaic British-ism).

Him and Tailor are very close, loving siblings — but his mismatched, bright, eccentric fashion sense drives Tailor up the wall.

Haberdasher knows this.

Haberdasher lets Equilibrist add glitter and sequins to his clothes to make it worse.

He's close to Prophet, Social, and especially The Cheshire Smurf. He often brings cake and tea to Prophet's house for tea parties — he's determined to be a light in the sad seer's life, even if they require safe supervision from non-Prophet adults whenever they hang out.

Chapter 81: The Cheshire Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Finding (things/people/places)

Job(s): Guide.

Appearance: Stripey floating catboy Smurf with a wide grin who's always curled up midair or floating about. He can cause his body parts to detach and float around, and can dissapear/reappear at will.

Relatives: Unknown, it's unclear if he's even really a Smurf or not.

Shipped With: Haberdasher?? Reversal??

Age Bracket: Older Smurfling or very young adult.

Aka: Chess, Checkers, Kitty, or Magic Smurf

He's a magic catboy Smurf with mysterious origins. He's chaotic neutral, but very polite and always gives directions when asked. He loves boardgames and tea.

He's friends with Barista, Habberdasher, and Prophet.

He's admittedly my most ridiculous and gimmicky Smurf design. He'd be overpowered and a deus ex machina, except he's more likely to passively watch a Smurf try to escape a villain than actually help out (unless that Smurf just so happens to be Haberdasher, of course).

He draws out his R's when he speaks, unless he's being 100% serious about something, usually something that upsets him — but he's so naturally ridiculous that even then, whatever he's complaining about is probably still utterly nonsensical.

Chapter 82: Roller Smurf ♀

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

An antique collector with a habit of filling his mushroom with far too much and throwing out far too little.

Chapter 91: Minimalist Smurf ♂

Gender: Male.

Special Trait: Mindfulness.

Job(s): Yoga Instructor.

Appearance: Smurf but yoga-y and/or hippie-y? Though maybe he'd actually just look like a normal Smurf, since he wouldn't want any extra clothes... Unless I do a joke where Hoarder looks perfectly normal while Minimalist has extra clothes, as a sort of ying-yang thing where they have a bit of each other's behavior in them...

Relatives: ???

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older-young adult or adult.

Appearance: ??? Smaller than usual??

Relatives: Boxer?

Shipped With: ???

Age Bracket: Older Smurfling, young adult, or older-young adult.

The Smurf I've put the least amount of thought into, I just noticed that a lot of canon Smurfs boil down to 'this guy is an ass'. So ta-da. A mean Smurf.

Where Boxer cuts someone down with fists, this guy wields words like precision weapons. But Boxer's not bad with insults either, and meanie-pants here is always happy to cheer on the other's brute tactics from the sidelines.
